Finding it impossible to carry her down the stairs in a canvas life net and two life belts they had rigged up, the police finally made a sort of a runway with four 16-foot planks and carefully slid the woman down to the first floor. Oxygen was administered at intervals.

60-Foot Stage To Be Topped In Cincinnati Area, Filling Homes And Factories

RAIN RECORD SHATTERED

56 Persons Known Dead As Elements Cause Damage In Several States

CINCINNATI, April 18—One hundred and eighty families have been moved from their river front homes in Cincinnati and across the river in Campbell county, Ky., the Red Cross reported today. Kenton county, Ky., was reported untouched by the high waters yet and officials said it would remain so until the river hits the 50-foot stage.

CINCINNATI, April 18—With an Ohio river flood crest of 60 feet predicted for tomorrow, residents and business men along the river front today prepared to evacuate their homes and factories.

A 60-foot stage would send the mighty Ohio swirling over its banks here. Flood stage is 52 feet but a level up to the 60-foot mark does but little damage to river-front houses and factories.

Meanwhile, U. S. Meteorologist W. C. Devereaux revealed that already the rainfall record for April has been broken. With the month little more than half gone, 7.14 inches of rain has already fallen, four hundredths above the all-time April high.

No new drowning fatalities had been reported early today. Four persons died over the weekend with their deaths attributed directly or indirectly to the high water.

Termed "Flash Flood"

Terming the raging torrents as a "flash flood," Devereaux cited conditions along the Ohio to prove his contention.

Steubenville and East Liverpool, O., reported no flood danger while Marietta, down the river only a short distance, anticipated a 33-foot stage, three feet under flood level. At Iron-ton, O., the river was rising five inches an hour while at Cincinnati the stream rose almost a foot an hour.

E. C. Ebert Appointed To Aid Division Job

Watt Street Man To Serve As Investigator, Acting Sub-District Manager

Edward C. Ebert, Watt street, began his duties Tuesday as an investigator and acting sub-division manager of Pickaway county's division of aid for the aged.

Mr. Ebert received notification by letter, Monday night, of his appointment as an investigator in the county department. The appointment was made by Thomas W. McCaw, chief of the Ohio division of aid for the aged. Mr. Ebert was instructed to serve as acting subdivision manager until further notice.

Thomas D. Krinn, 373 E. Union street, who has served as subdivision manager of the department since it was opened May 20, 1934, is under a 15-day suspension. The suspension was effective Sunday. Mr. Krinn did not receive official word of the suspension until Monday afternoon.

To Force Removal

At the end of the suspension period it is understood that removal charges will be filed against Mr. Krinn for alleged political activity.

After the suspension of Mr. Krinn and prior to the appointment of Mr. Ebert the office had only one employee, Miss Clarissa Talbut, E. Union street, a case investigator. Claude Ater, Perry township, and Mrs. Frank Littleton, Circleville, had previously been dismissed.

Miss Mable Beach, Springfield, district supervisor of the division of aid for the aged, visited the Circleville office Tuesday to assist Mr. Ebert in becoming acquainted with the work.

Mr. Ebert is well known to Circleville and Pickaway county folk. He was formerly in the undertaking business and for the last two years has been a partner in the Bob & Ed store, W. Main street.

WISH TO CROSS SEA IN PLANE? COST TO BE $375

WASHINGTON, April 18—The one-way passenger fare for trans-Atlantic air travel has been tentatively fixed at $375.

This tariff is contained in schedules drafted by Pan American Airways and submitted to the Civil Aeronautics Authority during hearings on the airline's application for mail payments.

Airline officials said today the $375 rate probably will be put into effect at the opening of regularly scheduled trans-ocean service regardless of how much money the government grants for carrying mail.

According to present plans, there will be no round-trip rate reduction. On the airline's South American service, certain rate concessions are made for round trips. Under the Civil Aeronautics act, the C. A. A. has no power to regulate passenger rates for international air traffic. If the authority feels that passenger rates on international carriers are too high, it has the power to reduce federal mail payments.

A. F. L. ACCEPTS HOMER MARTIN'S MOTOR WORKERS

WASHINGTON, April 18—The die was cast today for bitter union warfare in the automobile industry. The A. F. of L. decided to charter Homer Martin's anti-C.I.O. wing of the United Automobile Workers union in opposition to the C.I.O.

At the same time, President Roosevelt's labor peace conferences appeared doomed unless the President intervenes directly. A number of federation leaders now believe the A. F. of L. can defeat the C.I.O. in the field and that there is no need for peace talk.

President William Green took the occasion of the return of the prodigal Martin to appeal to all C.I.O. unions to desert John L. Lewis, C.I.O. head, and return to the A. F. of L.

Green stated: "To them we say: 'come back. We are willing to let bygones be bygones.'"

Bygones were bygones yesterday as Martin and Green conferred. Martin, who claimed he can lead 200,000 organized automobile workers back into the federation, formerly had been Green's most severe critic. Martin later charged that he had been "deceived" by the C.I.O.

Martin planned to call a meeting of his executive board in Detroit this week, obtain approval of his plan to rejoin the A. F. of L. and then submit it to a referendum vote of his group. Approval was a foregone conclusion.

LAWYER SEEKS FREEDOM FROM PEN FOR CAPONE

LOS ANGELES, April 18 — Federal District Judge Harry A. Holzer today had under submission a petition to have Al Capone, former Chicago gang leader, released from the federal correctional institution at Terminal Island.

The petition was in the form of a writ of habeas corpus and was filed by Attorney Abraham Teitelbaum, a Chicago attorney. According to Teitelbaum, Capone should have been released from prison yesterday, because of good behavior credits. Capone was sentenced in Chicago to 10 years in the federal penitentiary and one year in the county jail.

Fighting the petition is Assistant U. S. Attorney Maurice Norcop, who said Capone was not entitled to time off for good behavior while in jail pending his plea to a higher court. Judge Holzer indicated he would announce his decision at a later date, but should the court grant the writ, the famous prisoner could be freed in 28 days.

Teitelbaum claims Capone should have been released last March 12, but Norcop claimed he was not entitled to freedom until next November 20.

GIBRALTAR, April 18—More than 500 warships—one of the greatest arrays of rival naval strength in modern history—were massing in the Mediterranean sea today as a German armada approached Spanish waters for Spring maneuvers.

The warships were those of Europe's four leading maritime powers—Great Britain, France, Germany and Italy.

At the same time, Gibraltar received fresh reports of Italian and Spanish military concentrations near this ancient British stronghold and near Tangiers.

Acting in close concert, the French navy assumed the task of protecting the western entrance of the Mediterranean while the British fleet patrolled the middle and eastern parts of the sea.

Gibraltar and Tangiers were protected by a French fleet of 16 warships and one British destroyer.

Germany's plans for Spring naval maneuvers in Spanish waters were announced late last week. Forty warships will participate in the exercises, which have led to the feverish activities by Great Britain and France to protect their Mediterranean "lifelines" in the face of any eventualities.

CONGRESS ACTS TO PUT TEETH IN ALIEN LAWS

WASHINGTON, April 18 — As Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins studied the effect of the Supreme Court's decision on deportation proceedings against Harry Bridges, west coast C.I.O. leader, a fight was started in congress today to strengthen the deportation laws against subversive aliens.

While the court side-stepped the one big question raised by the government in the Strecker Case—whether membership in the Communist party is sufficient ground to deport aliens—it apparently had virtually destroyed the effectiveness of present laws, congressional lawyers said.

In its 6 to 2 decision, the tribunal ruled that past membership in the Communist party is not sufficient ground for deportation. Thus, congressional students of deportation laws say, an alien can protect himself by resigning from the Communist party as soon as he hears the government is "after" him.

The possibility also was seen that Communists might adopt a Ku Klux Klan tactic by declaring that an alien member is automatically expelled if the government seeks to deport him.

DOUGLAS, STONE MAY BE CHOSEN AS CANDIDATES

WASHINGTON, April 18 — High politics today pondered the possibility of two associate Supreme Court justices opposing each other for the presidency in 1940.

These long-shot "dark horses" are Justice William O. Douglas, of Connecticut and the West, the freshman member of the court, and Justice Harlan F. Stone, of New York and New England, a veteran of 14 years service on the tribunal.

The possibility these two graduates of the Columbia law school may become rival nominees for the presidency next year is based solely on political speculation. Political prognosticators see Douglas as a Democratic possibility if the Roosevelt-Garner-Farley factions seek a compromise candidate to avoid a bitter deadlock at the Democratic convention. They see Stone as a Republican possibility if the present Taft-Dewey-Vandenberg booms collapse and the G. O. P. decides to name a New Yorker as its nominee.

Douglas looms as a possible Democratic compromise candidate, in event President Roosevelt did not select one, because of his hard and fast friendship with them.

In addition, preparations went forward for celebration of Chancellor Hitler's 50th birthday Thursday amid rumors that some announcement regarding Danzig might serve as a birthday "gift" for the Reichsfuehrer.

Foreign reports that Poland is displaying a new willingness to hand the free city of Danzig back to the Reich were discounted in high Berlin circles. A foreign office spokesman said no progress had been made in German-Polish negotiations since Germany proposed the return of Danzig several weeks ago.

Nevertheless, reports persisted that the Danzig question and the entire issue of German-Polish relations may form the topic of an early declaration.

LONDON—British defenses at home and throughout empire were speeded as Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain prepared to inform parliament of status of anti-aggression negotiations.

GIBRALTAR—More than 500 warships massed in Mediterranean, with French vessels massed at Gibraltar and British ships at Malta.

BERLIN, April 18—In an unprecedented and unexplained order, the German government today banned the skies of Berlin to all civilian aircraft for a 25-hour period embracing Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's 50th birthday.

From 7 p. m. tomorrow until 8 p. m. Thursday, at which time the ceremonies attending the Fuehrer's birthday, will have ended, no private or transport planes may fly over the German capital. A brief announcement of the order stated that any foolhardy pilots who violate it will be shot down by anti-aircraft guns.

While there was no official indication that the proclamation was in any way connected with President Roosevelt's peace appeal, which has been drastically criticized by the German press, observers could not fail to notice that the order was issued closely following the President's message to Chancellor Hitler and Premier Mussolini.

It also coincided with scheduled departure of 40 German warships for Spanish waters for "Spring maneuvers."

Speculation Roused Meanwhile, Chancellor Hitler's action in summoning the Reichstag to meet April 23 to hear his reply to President Roosevelt's proposals was the subject of widespread speculation.

The Fuehrer is expected to reject the proposals advanced by the President and at the same time restate Germany's claims.

40 WARSHIPS TO DEPART

Early Declaration Expected On Danzig And Polish Relations

By International News Service Latest developments in the European situation today:

PARIS—Revealed France and England are prepared to fire Rumania's oil wells to prevent the oil from reaching Germany and Italy in the event of war. French cabinet discussed possible emergency and mobilization in lengthy session.

BERLIN—In an unexplained order, German government banned airplane flights over Berlin from 7 p. m. tomorrow until 8 p. m. Thursday.

ROME—Premier Mussolini's attitude toward President Roosevelt's peace proposals expected to be made known 10 days hence when Chancellor Hitler addresses Reichstag.

LONDON—British defenses at home and throughout empire were speeded as Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain prepared to inform parliament of status of anti-aggression negotiations.

GIBRALTAR—More than 500 warships massed in Mediterranean, with French vessels massed at Gibraltar and British ships at Malta.

BERLIN, April 18—In an unprecedented and unexplained order, the German government today banned the skies of Berlin to all civilian aircraft for a 25-hour period embracing Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler's 50th birthday.

From 7 p. m. tomorrow until 8 p. m. Thursday, at which time the ceremonies attending the Fuehrer's birthday, will have ended, no private or transport planes may fly over the German capital. A brief announcement of the order stated that any foolhardy pilots who violate it will be shot down by anti-aircraft guns.

While there was no official indication that the proclamation was in any way connected with President Roosevelt's peace appeal, which has been drastically criticized by the German press, observers could not fail to notice that the order was issued closely following the President's message to Chancellor Hitler and Premier Mussolini.

It also coincided with scheduled departure of 40 German warships for Spanish waters for "Spring maneuvers."

Meanwhile, Chancellor Hitler's action in summoning the Reichstag to meet April 23 to hear his reply to President Roosevelt's proposals was the subject of widespread speculation.

The Fuehrer is expected to reject the proposals advanced by the President and at the same time restate Germany's claims.

In addition, preparations went forward for celebration of Chancellor Hitler's 50th birthday Thursday amid rumors that some announcement regarding Danzig might serve as a birthday "gift" for the Reichsfuehrer.

Foreign reports that Poland is displaying a new willingness to hand the free city of Danzig back to the Reich were discounted in high Berlin circles. A foreign office spokesman said no progress had been made in German-Polish negotiations since Germany proposed the return of Danzig several weeks ago.

Nevertheless, reports persisted that the Danzig question and the entire issue of German-Polish relations may form the topic of an early declaration.

Relations Strained

Already strained by Polish fears of possible aggression and by German demands regarding Danzig, Berlin-Warsaw relations received a further set-back recently when Poland entered a defensive agreement with Great Britain. In so doing, Poland aligned itself with the so-called "Stop Hitler" bloc, an action which was soundly criticized by Berlin, which accused Great Britain, France and other nations in the anti-aggression bloc of attempting to "encircle" the Reich.

In his Reichstag address a week from next Friday, Hitler is expected to denounce President Roosevelt's peace proposal on grounds that it implied Germany and Italy plan aggressions against other European states.

The Fuehrer also may broach a series of counter-proposals calling for satisfaction of German demands for "living room" as the basis for permanent peace in Europe.

German press attacks on the American President's message, which may foreshadow Hitler's arguments, have contended that Roosevelt promoted the Anglo-French "encirclement" drive against Germany and Italy.

Berlin newspaper editorials scored the President's "hidden purposes" and accused him of being a tool of "British power politics."

The newspaper Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung stated: "England considers a catastrophe necessary and is determined to bring it on, instead of granting the German people the living rights which would safeguard the British position."

ORDINANCE NO. 1083

To Issue Bonds Without a Vote of the People.

WHEREAS, this Council has heretofore by resolution, duly adopted on the 25th day of January, 1939, declared it necessary to issue and sell $700,000 of bonds under authority of Sections 2292-2 and 2293-25 of the General Code of the State of Ohio for the purpose of resurfacing and repairing all streets of the City of Circleville, under a Federal WPA project.

WHEREAS, this Council desires a single bond issue for the foregoing purposes and the City Auditor has certified the maximum maturity does not exceed the estimate of the average number of years of usefulness as measured by the weighted average of the amount proposed to be expended for said improvements in accordance with the table of maturities filed by Section 2292-9 of the General Code.

BE IT ORDAINED by the Council of the City of Circleville that for the purpose of resurfacing and repairing all streets of the City of Circleville, under a Federal WPA project, it is necessary to issue and sell $700,000 of bonds under authority of Sections 2292-2 and 2293-25 of the General Code of Ohio, in one lot, that the amount of said bonds to be presently issued shall be in the principal sum of $700,000.

Said bonds shall be dated November 1, 1938, and shall be in the denominations of ONE THOUSAND and $100—Dollars ($1,000.00 and $100.00)—each.

They shall be serial and shall be numbered from one (1) to seven (7) both numbers inclusive; they shall bear interest at the rate of 2 1/2 percent per annum, payable semi-annually on the 1st day of May and November of each year, until the principal sum is paid as evidenced by the interest coupons attached thereto, the first interest, however, being payable on the 1st day of May, 1938. Both principal and interest of said bonds shall be payable at the Office of the Treasurer of said City of Circleville, Ohio, upon presentation and surrender of bonds and interest coupons as they respectively mature.

Said bonds shall be due and payable as follows: Bond Number 1.. November 1, 1940 Bond Number 2.. November 1, 1941 Bond Number 3.. November 1, 1942 Bond Number 4.. November 1, 1943 Bond Number 5.. November 1, 1944 Bond Number 6.. November 1, 1945 Bond Number 7.. November 1, 1946 which maturities are hereby determined to be substantially equal annual installments.

For the payment of said bonds and the interest coupons thereto attached the full faith, credit and revenue of the City of Circleville, Pickaway County, Ohio, is hereby irrevocably pledged, and the purpose of providing the necessary funds to pay the interest on the foregoing issue of bonds, promptly when and as the same falls due, and also to provide a fund sufficient to discharge the said serial bonds at maturity, there shall be and is hereby levied on all the taxable property in the City of Circleville, Pickaway County, Ohio, in addition to all other taxes a direct tax annually during the period said bonds are to run in an amount sufficient to provide funds to pay interest upon said bonds and when the same falls due and also to provide a fund for the discharge of the principal of said serial bonds at maturity, which tax shall not be less than the interest and sinking fund tax required by Section II of Article XII of the Constitution.

FRENCH FLEET HELPING GUARD BRITISH AREAS

500 Mighty Craft To Be On Duty In Mediterranean In Next Few Days

Franco of Spain has stationed additional soldiers and war materials in the southwestern section of his domain, north of the Gibraltar border, and in Spanish Morocco not far away from internationalized Tangiers.

Thus it appeared preparations were rapidly under way for any struggle that might suddenly arise for mastery of the Mediterranean—the sea that links Europe with Asia and Africa and of vital importance in the event of a war.

While the 16 French warships concentrated at Gibraltar, south of the British Mediterranean fleet massed at Malta, south of Italian Sicily and within striking distance of either the eastern or western ends of the sea.

Other strategic points were covered by the British and French fleets while Italy was understood to have stationed her fleet at various Italian bays.

British and French naval strength in the sea consisted of at least 182 ships, while the Italian and German total was estimated at 317. The Anglo-French power, however, was reported superior to that of the axis nations in the number of heavy, long-range fighting craft.

Vessels Listed

Britain and France were reported to have the following vessels in the area: eight battleships, two aircraft carriers, ten heavy cruisers, nine light cruisers, seventy-one destroyers, eight torpedo boats and forty-eight submarines.

Italy and Germany, on the other hand, had two battleships, two pocket battleships, one aircraft carrier, seven heavy cruisers, fourteen light cruisers, fifty-nine destroyers, seventy-one torpedo boats and one hundred and eighteen submarines in the danger area.

In addition, each nation had a number of smaller auxiliary vessels on hand, such as escort vessels, supply ships, mine layers and mine sweepers.

GAS COMPANY OFFICIAL ADDRESSES KIWANIANS

Kiwanians heard an interesting talk Monday evening on the utility industry when Frank Phillips, Athens, district manager of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co., appeared at their meeting in Hanley's tea room. Mr. Phillips discussed "The Romance of the Gas Business," interesting the large gathering with his knowledge of the industry and its background.

Representatives of other Circleville utilities attended the meeting.

The evening meal featured smelt received from the Escanaba, Mich., Kiwanis club, an annual event. The Escanaba club participates in the annual campaign to publicize the city's smelt run which is being nationally famed.

Dan McClain, chairman of the committee preparing for the Policeman's and Fireman's Ball to be May 17, reported much progress. Tickets were issued for sale by Kiwanians who are sponsoring the event. Policemen and firemen, too, are selling the ducks. Three funds will be added by proceeds of the Ball, the firemen's Christmas toy repair fund, a fund for purchase of needed equipment by the police department, and the Kiwanis club's underprivileged children's fund.

By International News Service

The death toll from tornadoes, floods and blizzards over much of the nation in the last 72 hours reached 56 today.

To the total of 49 deaths from tornadoes in Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Texas and Alabama was added six more from floods and one due to a Spring blizzard in Colorado.

With rehabilitation under way in the tornado-ripped states, it was believed all missing persons had been accounted for, leaving a known death toll by states as follows:

Arkansas, 26; Louisiana, 8; Oklahoma, 7; Texas, 7; Alabama, 1. Floods of the Ohio river and tributaries in Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois and West Virginia took four lives in Ohio and two in Indiana.

Hardest hit by a tornado was Center Point, Ark., where 17 persons were known to have been killed. The town itself was wiped out.

The flood danger had not been dissipated today as the Ohio and Wabash rivers, as well as smaller streams, swelled higher in many sections as the result of continued heavy rainfall.

In Colorado, the blizzard piled snowdrifts as high as ten feet on highways, leaving many persons marooned. A heavy snow in Nebraska also isolated motorists and others in many parts of the state.

SALE OF BABIES FOR $65 PLAYED IN LEGISLATURE

DENVER, Colo., April 18—Thrown into an uproar by charges babies had been sold "for as little as $65" in Colorado, the state senate today considered a bill to license child welfare agencies and maternity hospitals.

The charge that babies were for sale was made by Senator Curtis P. Ritchie, chairman of the senate state affairs committee, who declared:

"They sell babies for as little as $65 to anybody who wants to buy them at some Colorado 'baby farms.'"

Ritchie's statement brought sharp debate, delaying action on the measure.

ORDINANCE NO. 1083

To Issue Bonds Without a Vote of the People.

WHEREAS, this Council has heretofore by resolution, duly adopted on the 25th day of January, 1939, declared it necessary to issue bonds in the sum of $700,000 of bonds under authority of Sections 2292-2 and 2292-25 of the General Code of the State of Ohio for the purpose of resurfacing and repairing all streets of the City of Circleville, under a Federal WPA project.

WHEREAS, this Council desires a single bond issue for the foregoing purpose and the City Auditor has certified the maximum maturity does not exceed her estimate of the average number of years of usefulness as measured by the weighted average of the amounts proposed to be expended for said improvements in accordance with the table of maturities fixed by Section 2292-2 of the General Code.

WHEREAS, this Council estimates that a tax for said bonds will first appear on the duplicate for the tax year 1939, and that the final tax settlement, with the County Treasurer next following the inclusion of a tax for this issue in the annual budget by the County Auditor, as provided by law, will be obtained not earlier than the first day of September, 1940; now, therefore.

IT IS ORDERED by the Council of the City of Circleville that for the purpose of resurfacing and repairing all streets of the City of Circleville, under a Federal WPA project, it is necessary to issue and there shall be issued and sold bonds of the City under authority of Sections 2292-2, 2292-25 and 2292-26 of the General Code of Ohio, in one sum that the amount of said bonds to be presently issued shall be in the principal sum of $700,000.

Said bonds shall be dated November 1, 1938, and shall be in the denominations of ONE THOUSAND and no/100-Dollars ($1,000.00) each. They shall be serial and shall be numbered from one (1) to seven (7) both numbers inclusive. They shall bear interest at the rate of 2 1/2 per cent per annum, payable semi-annually on the 1st day of May and November of each year, until the principal sum is paid as evidenced by the interest coupons attached thereto, the first interest, however, being payable on the 1st day of May, 1939. Both principal and interest of said bonds shall be payable at the Office of the Treasurer of said City of Circleville, Ohio, upon presentation and surrender of bonds and interest coupons as they respectively mature.

Said bonds shall be due and payable as follows:

Bond Number 1	November 1, 1940
Bond Number 2	November 1, 1941
Bond Number 3	November 1, 1942
Bond Number 4	November 1, 1943
Bond Number 5	November 1, 1944
Bond Number 6	November 1, 1945
Bond Number 7	November 1, 1946

When said bonds have been once advertised and offered at public sale, as provided by law and they or any part thereof remain unsold for want of bidders, those unsold shall be sold by the City Auditor at private sale at not less than their par value and accrued interest thereon bearing the rate of interest provided for in the Ordinance. These bonds shall be subject to call or redemption prior to maturity at not more than par.

The City Auditor is hereby authorized to keep a record of the number, amount and rate of each bond sold, the amount received for it, to whom sold and at the time when payable.

FRENCH FLEET HELPING GUARD BRITISH AREAS

Franco of Spain has stationed additional soldiers and war materials in the southwestern section of his domain, north of the Gibraltar border, and in Spanish Morocco not far away from internationalized Tangiers.

Thus it appeared preparations were rapidly under way for any struggle that might suddenly arise for mastery of the Mediterranean—the sea that links Europe with Asia and Africa and of vital importance in the event of a war.

While the 16 French warships concentrated at Gibraltar, most of the British Mediterranean fleet massed at Malta, south of Italian Sicily and within striking distance of either the eastern or western ends of the sea.

Other strategic points were covered by the British and French fleets while Italy was understood to have stationed her fleet at various Italian bases.

British and French naval strength in the sea consisted of at least 182 ships, while the Italian and German total was estimated at 317. The Anglo-French power, however, was reported superior to that of the axis nations in the number of heavy, long-range fighting craft.

Vessels Listed

Britain and France were reported to have the following vessels in the area: eight battleships, two aircraft carriers, ten heavy cruisers, nine light cruisers, seventy-one destroyers, eight torpedo boats and forty-eight submarines.

Italy and Germany, on the other hand, had two battleships, two pocket battleships, one aircraft carrier, seven heavy cruisers, fourteen light cruisers, fifty-nine destroyers, seventy-one torpedo boats and one hundred and eighteen submarines in the danger area.

In addition, each nation had a number of smaller auxiliary vessels on hand, such as escort vessels, supply ships, mine layers and mine sweepers.

GAS COMPANY OFFICIAL ADDRESSES KIWANIANS

Kiwanians heard an interesting talk Monday evening on the utility industry when Frank Phillips, Athens, district manager of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co., appeared at their meeting in Hanley's tea room. Mr. Phillips discussed "The Romance of the Gas Business", interesting the large gathering with his knowledge of the industry and its background.

Representatives of other Circleville utilities attended the meeting.

The evening meal featured smelt received from the Escanaba, Mich., Kiwanis club, an annual event. The Escanaba club participates in the annual campaign to publicize the city's smelt run which is being nationally famed.

Dan McClain, chairman of the committee preparing for the Policeman's and Fireman's Ball to be May 17, reported much progress. Tickets were issued for sale by Kiwanians who are sponsoring the event. Policemen and firemen, too, are selling the ducats. Three funds will be added by proceeds of the Ball, the firemen's Christmas toy repair fund, a fund for purchase of needed equipment by the police department, and the Kiwanis club's underprivileged children's fund.

MRS. BERTHA CLARK DIES IN UNIVERSITY HOSPITAL

Mrs. Bertha Clark, 64, widow of George Clark, late of Muhlenberg township, died Tuesday at 8 a. m. in University hospital, Columbus. Mrs. Clark suffered from diabetes and recently underwent an operation for removal of a limb. She had made her home for the last 12 years with a son, Frank, in Williamsport.

Mrs. Clark is survived by four children, Frank, with whom she made her home; Ned, Lockbourne; Mary, Philadelphia, Pa., and Mrs. Ada Brown of London.

The funeral will be Thursday at 2:30 p. m. at the Williamsport Methodist church, the Rev. Mr. Mills of Columbus officiating. Burial will be in Darbyville cemetery by S. B. Metzger.

The body will be taken to the church an hour prior to services where it may be viewed by friends.

MOTORIST FINED $25

Norwood Steel, of Stallings, W. Va., paid a fine of $25 and costs, Sunday, in a Chillicothe court on a charge of reckless driving. His car nicked a fender on the auto of Stanley Jackson, of Circleville, on Route 23. He failed to stop after the accident and was arrested at Waverly. He claimed he did not know he had struck the other car.

the belief that "no great alarm need be felt."

Thousands of acres of lowlands remained inundated near Athens but the Hocking River apparently had reached a crest of 18.7 feet, about two over flood stage. Rainfall in the district during the past 24 hours amounted to 1.6 inches.

By International News Service

The death toll from tornadoes, floods and blizzards over much of the nation in the last 72 hours reached 56 today.

To the total of 49 deaths from tornadoes in Arkansas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Texas and Alabama was added six more from floods and one due to a Spring blizzard in Colorado.

With rehabilitation under way in the tornado-ripped states, it was believed all missing persons had been accounted for, leaving a known death toll by states as follows:

Arkansas, 26; Louisiana, 8; Oklahoma, 7; Texas, 7; Alabama, 1. Floods of the Ohio river and tributaries in Ohio, Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois and West Virginia took four lives in Ohio and two in Indiana.

Hardest hit by a tornado was Center Point, Ark., where 17 persons were known to have been killed. The town itself was wiped out.

The flood danger had not been dissipated today as the Ohio and Wabash rivers, as well as smaller streams, swelled higher in many sections as the result of continued heavy rainfall.

In Colorado, the blizzard piled snowdrifts as high as ten feet on highways, leaving many persons marooned. A heavy snow in Nebraska also isolated motorists and others in many parts of the state.

SALE OF BABIES FOR $65 PLAYED IN LEGISLATURE

DENVER, Colo., April 18—

Thrown into an uproar by charges babies had been sold "for as little as $65" in Colorado, the state senate today considered a bill to license child welfare agencies and maternity hospitals.

The charge that babies were for sale was made by Senator Curtis P. Ritchie, chairman of the senate state affairs committee, who declared:

"They sell babies for as little as $65 to anybody who wants to buy them at some Colorado 'baby farms.'"

Ritchie's statement brought sharp debate, delaying action on the measure.

THREE KILLERS CLING TO HOPE FOR CLEMENCY

Dingledines, Father And Son, To Go With Chicagoan To Death Chair

ALL DECLARE INNOCENCE

Gun Fight Following 1937 Holdup Ends In Murder, Supreme Penalty

COLUMBUS, April 18—Clinging tenaciously to the belief that their lives will be spared but willing to meet death calmly if that is to be their fate, a white haired father and his only son paced away agonizing moments in their death row cells in Ohio penitentiary today.

Unless the "miracle" they hope for occurs, 54-year-old Harry Dingledine and his 29-year-old son, Henry, both of Springfield, will die in the electric chair at dusk tomorrow night along with Harry Chapman, 37-year-old bespectacled Chicagoan.

Chapman, with the Dingledines, participated in a gun battle near Springfield on Sept. 3, 1937, which cost the lives of two Springfield peace officers and Robert Cornette, a bandit.

The gunfight followed a holdup in Springfield. The officers, slain at nearby Crystal Lake when the suspects were cornered, were Patrolman Martin Randolph and Deputy Sheriff Edward Furrey. The trio were sentenced to death for the killing of Randolph.

All Declare Innocence

Interviewed late yesterday in the death row to which they have been confined for 13 months, each of the three men steadfastly declared he was innocent. But the Dingledines were inclined to blame Chapman for their plight and Chapman said "I would not be in my present position if it were not for the Dingledines."

"I am innocent," Henry declared. "I never killed anyone. I never even had a gun in my hand at Crystal Lake. Sure I took part in the robbery but I had nothing to do with the murders."

"I love life. Life is dear to me. So what are they going to do? They are going to take me through that little door and put me in the electric chair. Then they will turn on the juice and I'll die. For what?"

"And me," chimed in Henry's

W. C. T. U. Presents More Books to City Library

The Pickaway county W.C.T.U., through its president, Mrs. Lucy Price, has made a second annual gift of books to the Public Library. The new books will be available to readers through both the local and extension service.

Last year a gift from the county unions included 10 books on social hygiene and physical education, fitting in the education programs of the public schools and study groups of the county. The new list adds reliable and timely information for the continuation of these studies, not only for study groups, but for the general reader.

The new books, of which there are two sets, one especially for the book truck service are: On the Trail of Marijuana, by E. A. and Robert Rowell; Science Speaks to Young Men on Liquor, Tobacco, Narcotics and Marijuana, by George Thomason, M. D.; Plain Facts for Young Women on Marijuana, Narcotics, Etc., by Belle Wood-Comstock, M. D.; and The Cigarette as a Physician Sees It, by Daniel H. Cress, M. D.

Another authoritative book on marijuana, added recently to the library, is Marijuana, Americas New Drug Problem, by Robert P. Walton.

Two new biographies of Francis Willard, founder of the World W.C.T.U., have been published and added to the library. One for adults is Francis Willard of Evanston, by L. J. Trowbridge. The other, for boys and girls, is Pioneer Girl, by Clara Ingram Judson.

Sound of artillery fire which is clearly audible 200 miles away, often cannot be heard 100 miles away.

father. "Do I look like the sort of man who would kill another man? I'll go out of this place alive if Chapman will only tell the truth."

At the other end of death row, Chapman sat talking to his wife. He interrupted his conversation long enough to pass his comment on the Dingledines and add "I'll die like a man, if I must go."

First Triple Death

If the Dingledines and Chapman die tomorrow night, it will constitute the first triple electrocution at the prison since Jan. 30, 1931 and the third in the history of the penitentiary. The other was on Sept. 2, 1926 when three Meigs county men were executed.

In charge of the execution will be Acting Warden William F. Amrine, who despite his years of penal experience, will be presiding at his second electrocution.

Obviously nervous over the task which he must perform, Amrine said today that he was sure "everything would go off on schedule" and with no interruptions."

On Trip To Capital
We boarded the train at Chillicothe on Friday, April 14 at 5:45 for the Baltimore and Ohio Educational Excursion to Washington D. C. We arrived at the Union Station in Washington on Saturday morning at 6:10. After eating our breakfast, we started on our tour of the city in private cars. Our drivers pointed out places of interest and told us interesting facts about historical scenes. We first viewed the foreign embassies and decided the most beautiful one to be the Spanish embassy. We spent an hour at the zoo which is one of the largest and most interesting in the United States. From the zoo, we crossed the Frances Scott Key Bridge and went to Arlington National Cemetery. We sat in the president's chair at the amphitheatre and watched the sentinel as he guarded the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. We went through Lee's home at Arlington and from the front porch got one of our finest views of Washington.

From Arlington, we crossed the Potomac on the Arlington Memorial Bridge and viewed the beautiful Lincoln Memorial. Most of us consider this building to be the outstanding attraction in Washington. Next we went to the White House. There were so many visitors there we couldn't see much but the chandeliers. We were rather disappointed because we didn't get to see either the President or Mrs. Roosevelt and they were both at home at the time.

After we had gone through the White House, we ate lunch and then started through the Smithsonian Institute. Our party broke up in small groups so that each person might visit those exhibits in which he was most interested. We met again at 2:00 and some of us wanted to go to Mount Vernon so we took the sixteen mile trip down the Potomac to see Washington's home. When we got back in the city again, we climbed to the top of Washington's Monument. There were 898 steps to climb. Most of us rode down on the elevator. From the monument we went to the Capitol, then through the Post Office

Mrs. Bertha Petty, Doc. and Mrs. Welsh, Mrs. Nancy Petty and her little daughter Joyce Carol, left Ashville Friday night for Chicago to pay a short visit to Nancy Petty who is attending an electrical school there and to bring home Lewis Huber who has been in the same school for the past few months. The party arrived home at an early hour Monday morning, covering nearly 750 miles in the round trip.

—Ashville—
The village council was in session Monday evening transacting no business except the paying of current bills, a member of council told us. Too soppy for any kind of street work, he said. Though a general cleanup of rubbish is moving right along, Commissioner Bob Walden and Charles Fout are doing a good job of it.

The group that did not go to Mount Vernon went on a public building tour, the most interesting, they decided, was the Bureau of Investigation.

We left Washington at 8 o'clock Saturday evening and it was a tired but satisfied group that arrived in Chillicothe on Sunday morning.

THREE KILLERS CLING TO HOPE FOR CLEMENCY

Dingledines, Father And Son, To Go With Chicagoan To Death Chair

ALL DECLARE INNOCENCE

Gun Fight Following 1937 Holdup Ends In Murder, Supreme Penalty

COLUMBUS, April 18—Clinging tenaciously to the belief that their lives will be spared but willing to meet death calmly if that is to be their fate, a white haired father and his only son paced away agonizing moments in their death row cells in Ohio penitentiary today.

Unless the "miracle" they hope for occurs, 54-year-old Harry Dingledine and his 29-year-old son, Henry, both of Springfield, will die in the electric chair at dusk tomorrow night along with Harry Chapman, 37-year-old bespectacled Chicagoan.

Chapman, with the Dingledines, participated in a gun battle near Springfield on Sept. 3, 1937, which cost the lives of two Springfield peace officers and Robert Cornette, a bandit.

The gunfight followed a holdup in Springfield. The officers, slain at nearby Crystal Lake when the suspects were cornered, were Patrolman Martin Randolph and Deputy Sheriff Edward Furrey. The trio were sentenced to death for the killing of Randolph.

All Declare Innocence
Interviewed late yesterday in the death row to which they have been confined for 13 months, each of the three men steadfastly declared he was innocent. But the Dingledines were inclined to blame Chapman for their plight and Chapman said "I would not be in my present position if it were not for the Dingledines."

"I am innocent," Henry declared. "I never killed anyone. I never even had a gun in my hand at Crystal Lake. Sure I took part in the robbery but I had nothing to do with the murders."

"I love life. Life is dear to me. So what are they going to do? They are going to take me through that little door and put me in the electric chair. Then they will turn on the juice and I'll die. For what?"

"And me," chimed in Henry's father. "Do I look like the sort of man who would kill another man? I'll go out of this place alive if Chapman will only tell the truth."

At the other end of death row, Chapman sat talking to his wife. He interrupted his conversation long enough to pass his comment on the Dingledines and add "I'll die like a man, if I must go."

First Triple Death
If the Dingledines and Chapman die tomorrow night, it will constitute the first triple electrocution at the prison since Jan. 30, 1931 and the third in the history of the penitentiary. The other was on Sept. 2, 1926 when three Meigs county men were executed.

In charge of the execution will be Acting Warden William F. Amrine, who despite his years of penal experience, will be presiding at his second electrocution.

Obviously nervous over the task which he must perform, Amrine said today that he was sure "everything would go off on schedule" and with no interruptions.

Sound of artillery fire which is clearly audible 200 miles away, often cannot be heard 100 miles away.

Sam Gregg told us that the red fox squirrel which had taken shelter and food at his home for all last Winter, and which a few weeks ago had been coaxed away by some designing old dame up to the big Crowley woods, had gotten into some kind of family mix-up and was back to his good home again. The couple of stands of bees he owns nearly in the door yard, wintered fairly well, he said, except that the one appears weak and tired. And a kind hearted old man within hearing distance volunteered his services to make these little workers well and strong again—queen bee dead, the old doctor said.

Ashville
Mrs. Bertha Petty, Doc. and Mrs. Welsh, Mrs. Rancy Petty and her little daughter Joyce Carol, left Ashville Friday night for Chicago to pay a short visit to Rancy Petty who is attending an electrical school there and to bring home Lewis Huber who has been in the same school for the past few months. The party arrived home at an early hour Monday morning, covering nearly 750 miles in the round trip.

The village council was in session Monday evening transacting no business except the paying of current bills, a member of council told us. Too soppy for any kind of street work, he said. Though a general cleanup of rubbish is moving right along, Commissioner Bob Walden and Charles Fout are doing a good job of it.

W. C. T. U. Presents More Books to City Library

The Pickaway county W.C.T.U., through its president, Mrs. Lucy Price, has made a second annual gift of books to the Public Library. The new books will be available to readers through both the local and extension service.

Last year a gift from the county unions included 10 books on social hygiene and physical education, fitting in the education programs of the public schools and study groups of the county. The new list adds reliable and timely information for the continuation of these studies, not only for study groups, but for the general reader.

The new books, of which there are two sets, one especially for the book truck service are: On the Trail of Marijuana, by E. A. and Robert Rowell; Science Speaks to Young Men on Liquor, Tobacco, Narcotics and Marijuana, by George Thomason, M. D.; Plain Facts for Young Women on Marijuana, Narcotics, Etc., by Belle Wood-Comstock, M. D.; and The Cigarette as a Physician Sees It, by Daniel H. Cress, M. D.

Another authoritative book on marijuana, added recently to the library, is Marijuana, Americas New Drug Problem, by Robert P. Walton.

Two new biographies of Francis Willard, founder of the World W.C.T.U., have been published and added to the library. One for adults is Francis Willard of Evanston, by L. J. Trowbridge. The other, for boys and girls, is Pioneer Girl, by Clara Ingram Judson.

Quentin Tosca left Ashville this Tuesday morning for Old Orchard, Maine, known as a Summer resort, and visited by thousands of people each season. Mr. Tosca said. He is no stranger at Old Orchard, having operated bowling alleys there for several years. He expects to return home about October 10. The distance by bus, his mode of travel, is 1,000 miles, he told us.

We boarded the train at Chillicothe on Friday, April 14 at 5:45 for the Baltimore and Ohio Educational Excursion to Washington D. C. We arrived at the Union Station in Washington on Saturday morning at 6:10. After eating our breakfast, we started on our tour of the city in private cars. Our drivers pointed out places of interest and told us interesting facts about historical scenes. We first viewed the foreign embassies and decided the most beautiful one to be the Spanish embassy. We spent an hour at the zoo which is one of the largest and most interesting in the United States. From the zoo, we crossed the Frances Scott Key Bridge and went to Arlington National Cemetery. We sat in the president's chair at the amphitheatre and watched the sentinel as he guarded the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier. We went through Lee's home at Arlington and from the front porch got one of our finest views of Washington.

From Arlington, we crossed the Potomac on the Arlington Memorial Bridge and viewed the beautiful Lincoln Memorial. Most of us consider this building to be the outstanding attraction in Washington. Next we went to the White House. There were so many visitors there we couldn't see much but the chandeliers. We were rather disappointed because we didn't get to see either the President or Mrs. Roosevelt and they were both at home at the time.

After we had gone through the White House, we ate lunch and then started through the Smithsonian Institute. Our party broke up in small groups so that each person might visit those exhibits in which he was most interested. We met again at 2:00 and some of us wanted to go to Mount Vernon so we took the sixteen mile trip down the Potomac to see Washington's home. When we got back in the city again, we climbed to the top of Washington's Monument. There were 898 steps to climb. Most of us rode down on the elevator. From the monument we went to the Capitol, then through the Post Office

THE TEST OF PEACEFULNESS

AS intelligent readers know, the lines separating the two groups of nations now lining up in Europe are now clearly defined "ideologically." The terms "democracy" and "autocracy" grow inaccurate as the nations form blocs of allies and organize for war. Americans can agree pretty well about the general fact that Britain and France are obviously far more democratic than totalitarian Germany and Italy; but when it comes to some of the other allies that our foreign friends are collecting for strategic purposes, the democratic strain seems pretty thin.

We need a more accurate shibboleth to distinguish between the two groups of nations apparently on the verge of war with each other. And perhaps there is one that we Americans can agree on, as representing our own ideal and worthy at least of our moral support. It is peacefulness.

Prime Minister Chamberlain, in a recent address to the British Parliament, used this term rather than "democracy" in referring to the present conflict if ideals and purposes in Europe. "I ask the House to believe," he said, "that, without any prejudice, without any preconceived ideological notions, we are endeavoring to the utmost of our ability to marshal the forces which are still in favor of peace, which are willing to resist aggression, that our efforts may be successful."

Premier Daladier of France expresses the same idea when he says, "Our aim is to organize that necessary collaboration of all the nations which do not think of menacing the vital interests of any people."

Unfortunately it may become necessary for some of those threatened nations over there to fight for peace. If so, American sympathies will naturally be with those who make it obvious that they are fighting not for conquest, but to restore peace when it has been shattered by aggressors.

SCOTCH REFORM

IN Glasgow, which has long had a reputation for hard drinking, new reform laws have gone into effect, meant to bring more sobriety and propriety into the city "pubs." The authorities have announced that they will not longer allow such games as "darts, dominoes, checkers and so on" to be played while drinks are being served. This strikes distant observers as curious.

The game of darts, as some Scottish observers admit, may be a bit dangerous when mixed with hard liquor. It takes a steady hand to throw darts. But Americans would suppose that such games as

Up to a sudden morning, feeling none too good about all this rain. Tried to buy some water hilly seed but found none in town. Farmers are complaining about the delay in Spring work, and some wheat is injured. An airplane passed high over head and kids on the way to school stopped to watch it. Not a semblance of fear on any of those young faces. And I'll bet that not more than a half dozen local youngsters know how to put on a gas mask.

There goes Tink Hill, who has been ill for several weeks and now is on the road to recovery. Pat Yates offered a fine suggestion for the slowing down of traffic on North Court street. He would place a yellow dividing line on the hill there. That would prevent a lot of passing and consequently, slow down traffic, especially if a few arrests were made for reckless driving.

FEDERAL JUDGES TO RESIGN

WASHINGTON—Those inside the Justice Department say that there was more behind Attorney General Murphy's recent trip with J. Edgar Hoover than chasing gangsters.

Real fact is that Super G-Man Hoover has been turned loose on a clean-up of the federal judiciary, already has about closed his cases on seven high judges in various parts of the country.

For the time being they must be nameless, but they include a district judge in Michigan, another in Ohio, another in Illinois, three district judges in New York, and a circuit judge in Pennsylvania.

Best betting is that all seven will resign within the next three months.

Murphy has decided to scrap the old-fashioned method of impeachment in cleaning up the judiciary, for the reason that it takes too long and is too uncertain. Instead he is presenting the judges with the evidence against them, carefully collected through G-men, and telling them they can resign or else.

Mere resignation has not saved Judge Manton of New York from further indictment following resignation. Judge Thomas of Connecticut is already in an institution and will not be impeached.

Politically, the Murphy clean-up cuts both ways. The two judges so far have been Democrats, and one has been replaced with a Republican. The majority of the seven remaining on the list are Republicans.

NOTE—The evidence against Judges Manton and Thomas was in Justice Department files for over nine months under Murphy's predecessor.

SHAKEN BRITISH GUARANTIES

Mussolini's and Hitler's tactics now are chiefly designed to shake the confidence of smaller European powers in Great Britain.

Mussolini went into Albania after Chamberlain emphatically told him not to. Following which Chamberlain said, in effect: "All right, I won't spank this time, but don't do it again."

Now he has told Mussolini not to go into Greece, which ought to be a good guaranty that Il Duce will go in.

This is why the Rumanians want to see the exact color of the British guaranties, and why the Poles are worried over their British security pact.

Chief goal of Hitler-Mussolini strategy is to shake all the potential allies off the French-British alignment, then it will be a lot safer to take those two powers to the cleaners.

Physicians Again Favor Hypnotism

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

WE HAVE spoken of the power of suggestion in medical treatment and in the ways of symptoms, and of health. The most powerful agent in creating suggestion is undoubtedly hypnotism.

I note by articles in the medical press that hypnotism is coming back into favor among conservative physicians as a method of treatment for nervous ills. For many years it has had a general air of charlatanism about it, and for that reason a really valuable means of treatment has fallen into disuse.

Intelligence Needed

Psychoanalysis, the psychotherapeutic method most often discussed today, is by no means applicable to all patients. The patient must be fairly intelligent to be psychoanalyzed, and sufficiently educated to understand the method and purpose of analysis. He must want to get well (this sounds like a contradiction, but the fact is that most neurotic patients do not want to get well). In any case psychoanalysis is expensive in time, energy and money, for an analysis takes at least a year. And, even so, it is not always successful. The object is to allow the patient to analyze his own emotional life in order to understand what are his unconscious impulses. After this unconscious material has bubbled over, the physician leads his patient into a reintegration of his personality. But not all analyses end in this theoretically ideal manner, because the patient's unhappy personality may be too solidly founded to allow transformation.

Good Approach

Hypnotism offers a good approach to many neuroses because it allows the physician to affect the subconscious. This is accomplished without the patient building up consious defense reactions or awareness of what is happening.

There are a number of misconceptions about hypnotism that should be corrected. The hypnotist does not need to be a strong personality, or one with strong will as opposed to the weak will of the subject. In fact, will has nothing to do with the induction of hypnosis.

The mechanism of normal sleep and of hypnotism are the same—both are states of dissociation. Neither the will nor the memory are lost during hypnosis. However deep the hypnosis, the subject will remember everything that happens if he is told to do so.

No Strange Power

The hypnotist does not possess any strange power over the subject who has once been hypnotized, but it is possible to reinduce hypnosis with a very insignificant signal. This may be a stare, a click of the fingers, a written word or a word spoken in a whisper. But the signal must be agreed on beforehand. Even a telephone call or a signal over the radio will do.

Hypnotism simply makes the subject more suggestible. With the proper technique and a conscientious physician there is no telling what symptoms can be removed by hypnosis. It must not be suggested that an arm or a leg which is really organically paralyzed can regain movement, but long-standing functional paralysis which has resisted all other forms of treatment may recover immediately under hypnosis. A case of amnesia may be awakened into reality. An insomniac may begin to sleep like a baby. Even organic pain may be mitigated.

READ THIS FIRST:

In spite of the inspiration provided by his bride a few months, Phil Farish finds writing his first novel a tedious task. Phil and Eleanor, new to New York, where he is a reporter, live modestly in Greenwich Village. They had met on a small town newspaper. Eleanor had stopped writing when she had come to New York with Phil. She longed to do something to supplement their income, but Phil would not consider it. Phil introduces Eleanor to Kate Douglas, society editor of his paper. Kate needs a part-time assistant. Eleanor, finally persuaded by Phil to let her take the job. When Eleanor gets the gripe on the eve of a party, she induces Phil to go without her, much against his will. (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER TEN

THE DOCTOR said Eleanor could go back to work on Monday. Bright spots of color burned with excitement on her pale cheeks. She thought she would go mad if she had to stay bottled up in the dark apartment any longer. Phil would not let her go back to work until the doctor said she was fully recovered from her illness.

Phil had been such a darling, bringing her flowers every day, and little toys and all the magazines. The night the doctor told her she could return to the office the next week, Phil brought home her pay envelope. She'd been paid for the two weeks she was away.

"Ninety dollars!" she said. "Phil, will you let me buy some new things for the living room? That rug is beginning to look pretty spotty."

He shook his head. Eleanor sent fifty of it to the garage to pay the old debt on the car. Another twenty went in five-dollar sections on small bills of Phil's. He'd never known; he never opened his bills when they came. The last twenty she put away in the Mexican pottery pig with a slit in its back.

She was at the office before nine on Monday morning, opening mail interestingly, reading through the copy prepared in her absence. Kate came in at ten. "Am I glad to see you back!" she exclaimed. "If you feel up to it, I wish you'd get out a lot of stuff about flower arrangements. Eleanor shared her pencils happily. "You're not half as glad to see me back as I am glad to be back. I feel as if I'd been away a year."

The older woman looked at her with a worried expression on her broad face. "Sometimes I wish I had a home to try out all my theories on," she said. "But you have a lovely apartment." Eleanor said, surprised. "It's not much fun trying out theories on yourself," she retorted. "It would be fun to wait until evening and someone came home to enjoy them."

Eleanor said, "I've been wondering if we couldn't mimeograph copies of our home-making articles and mail them to subscribers who write in for them." "Good idea," Kate agreed. "Get in one of the stenographers and tell her what you want. By the way, would you and Phil like to have dinner at my place tonight?" "I'd love to, but I think Phil would rather stay home tonight and have me get dinner. You know how men are."

But Phil was not to have dinner at home that night. He rased her up from Grand Central and said, "Well, the old man is sending me out to Cleveland on the Jacobi story. I may be gone a week. . . I stopped at the apartment and threw some things in a bag. Don't do anything I wouldn't do while I'm gone. I'll write you every day."

"You put all your writing into the story and don't worry about me." "What will you do on evenings?" "Maybe I'll get that sweater done, Phil. Or maybe I'll get me a beau and paint the town red." Eleanor was only kidding him, but he was quiet for a moment. Then he said, "Well . . . so long, honey. You can write me care of International News Service."

Phil was gone ten days. The first night Eleanor went to the movies by herself. The second night she stayed home and tried to read. The apartment seemed awfully lonesome and the telephone didn't ring. The third night she was having a solitary dinner in a tearoom when she looked up and saw Ed Hastings standing at her table. Phil didn't like Hastings, but Eleanor had found his professional charm rather interesting. He was in his late thirties and looked much younger. He was trying his hand at acting, or rather, getting a job acting. He had an income, he had told her at one of the parties where they had met, so it wasn't terribly important how soon he landed a job.

His life was devoted to adventure ("to adventuring with the ladies," Phil had said contemptuously) and he had had many. He'd shipped on cattle boats, and visited at a foreign palace, and painted a bit, and run an interior decorating shop, and worked as a coal miner. Eleanor found his talk vastly entertaining. She said, "Sit down and join me." After dinner he said: "There's an awfully interesting exhibit at the Modern gallery. I think you'd appreciate it. Will you go over with me?"

Phil wouldn't like it much, Eleanor thought, but Phil wouldn't want her to rattle around the apartment alone another evening. She said she'd love to. It was rather fun. She had never been to an exhibit before, didn't know anything about pictures. Ed's knowledge was superficial, but he knew enough about it all to explain the surface of things to her. Eleanor breathed in information, making it part of her. Her mind was fiercely acquisitive.

When he left her at her door, she thanked him. "It was great fun," she said.

He lingered over her hand. "I don't meet many women like you," he said. "Could we do it again?" "Perhaps," she said, withdrawing her hand, and added, "some time."

He was on the telephone that was ringing when she let herself in that next night.

"Hello, Lovely Lady," he said. "Will you get into something pretty and go to the "Follies" with me tonight?"

"W-well . . ." she hesitated. After all, an invitation to the "Follies"!

He said: "They're awfully good seats."

Eleanor calculated the time she had to bathe and get into her black dress, even while she argued with herself the advisability of accepting his invitation. She said: "What time will you call for me?"

"I'll expect you to dine with me, so I'll be around about seven. What color flowers would you like?" "Don't bring any flowers," she said firmly.

Phil's train got in after midnight and he went straight to the apartment without telegraphing her. Eleanor was taking off her black dress when she heard his key in the lock. She pulled the straps up on her shoulders and went out to meet him.

He put his arms about her and kissed her hungrily. Then he became aware of her gown. "How come?" he said.

"I was out . . . Ed Hastings took me to meet Nina Claire. She's the star of 'Naughty Eloise.' I told her how much you liked her when we saw her together." Phil wet his lips before he spoke. What was Ed Hastings doing around here?

"I met him at a tearoom one night and he . . . Phil, you might as well know it. He took me to an art exhibition, and to the 'Follies' and to dance at the Montmartre and to . . . to this party tonight. And there wasn't a bit of harm in it. We're in New York and we're modern."

Phil's hand on her wrist pressed cruelly. His eyes blazed into hers. His voice was even and low. "We may be in New York, but we aren't modern when it comes to dates with other men and women." Eleanor got her wrist away and cherished the red mark. "Phil, I wouldn't be jealous if you had dates with other people. I want us each to be free."

"If I'd wanted to be free to make dates with other women, Nell, I wouldn't have asked you to marry me. I don't want any woman but you. When you find you want another man besides me, we'll call the whole thing off. . . . Good night."

THE TEST OF PEACEFULNESS

AS intelligent readers know, the lines separating the two groups of nations now lining up in Europe are now clearly defined "ideologically." The terms "democracy" and "autocracy" grow inaccurate as the nations form blocs of allies and organize for war. Americans can agree pretty well about the general fact that Britain and France are obviously far more democratic than totalitarian Germany and Italy; but when it comes to some of the other allies that our foreign friends are collecting for strategic purposes, the democratic strain seems pretty thin.

We need a more accurate shibboleth to distinguish between the two groups of nations apparently on the verge of war with each other. And perhaps there is one that we Americans can agree on, as representing our own ideal and worthy at least of our moral support. It is peacefulness.

Prime Minister Chamberlain, in a recent address to the British Parliament, used this term rather than "democracy" in referring to the present conflict of ideals and purposes in Europe. "I ask the House to believe," he said, "that, without any prejudice, without any preconceived ideological notions, we are endeavoring to the utmost of our ability so to marshal the forces which are still in favor of peace, which are willing to resist aggression, that our efforts may be successful."

Premier Daladier of France expresses the same idea when he says, "Our aim is to organize that necessary collaboration of all the nations which do not think of menacing the vital interests of any people."

Unfortunately it may become necessary for some of those threatened nations over there to fight for peace. If so, American sympathies will naturally be with those who make it obvious that they are fighting not for conquest, but to restore peace when it has been shattered by aggressors.

SCOTCH REFORM

IN Glasgow, which has long had a reputation for hard drinking, new reform laws have gone into effect, meant to bring more sobriety and propriety into the city "pubs." The authorities have announced that they will no longer allow such games as "darts, dominoes, checkers and so on" to be played while drinks are being served. This strikes distant observers as curious.

The game of darts, as some Scottish observers admit, may be a bit dangerous when mixed with hard liquor. It takes a steady hand to throw darts. But Americans would suppose that such games as

READ THIS FIRST:
In spite of the inspiration provided by his bride of a few months, Phil Parrish finds writing his first novel a tedious task. Phil and Eleanor, new to New York, where he is a reporter, live modestly in Greenwich Village. They had met on a small town newspaper. Eleanor had stopped writing when she had come to New York with Phil. She longed to do something to supplement their income, but Phil would not consider it. Phil introduces Eleanor to Kate Douglas, society editor of his paper. Kate needs a part-time assistant. Eleanor finally persuades Phil to let her take the job. When Eleanor gets the gripe on the eve of a party, she induces Phil to go without her, much against his will. (NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY)

CHAPTER TEN

THE DOCTOR said Eleanor could go back to work on Monday. Bright spots of color burned with excitement on her pale cheeks. She thought she would go mad if she had to stay bottled up in the dark apartment any longer. Phil would not let her go back to work until the doctor said she was fully recovered from her illness.

Phil had been such a darling, bringing her flowers every day, and little toys and all the magazines. The night the doctor told her she could return to the office the next week, Phil brought home her pay envelope. She'd been paid for the two weeks she was away.

"Ninety dollars!" she said. "Phil, will you let me buy some new things for the living room? That rug is beginning to look pretty spotty."

He shook his head. Eleanor sent fifty of it to the garage to pay the old debt on the car. Another twenty went in five-dollar sections on small bills of Phil's. He'd never know; he never opened his bills when they came. The last twenty she put away in the Mexican pottery piggy bank with a slit in its back.

She was at the office before nine on Monday morning, opening mail interestingly, reading through the copy prepared in her absence. Kate came in at ten.

"Am I glad to see you back!" she exclaimed. "If you feel up to it, I wish you'd get out a lot of stuff about flower arrangements."

Eleanor sharpened her pencils happily. "You're not half as glad to see me back as I am glad to be back. I feel as if I'd been away a year."

The older woman looked at her with a worried expression on her broad face. "Sometimes I wish I had a home to try out all my theories on," she said.

"But you have a lovely apartment," Eleanor said, surprised. "It's not much fun trying out theories on yourself," she retorted. "It would be fun to wait until evening and someone came home to enjoy them."

Eleanor said, "I've been wondering if we couldn't mimeograph copies of our home-making articles and mail them to subscribers who write in for them."

"Good idea," Kate agreed. "Get in one of the stenographers and tell her what you want. By the way, would you and Phil like to have dinner at my place tonight?"

"I'd love to, but I think Phil would rather stay home tonight and have me get dinner. You know how men are."

But Phil was not to have dinner at home that night. He rang her up from Grand Central and said, "Nell, the old man is sending me out to Cleveland on the Jacobus story. I may be gone a week. . . . I stopped at the apartment and threw some things in a bag. Don't do anything I wouldn't do while I'm gone. I'll write you every day."

"You put all your writing into the story and don't worry about me."

"What will you do evenings?"

"Maybe I'll get that sweater done. Phil. Or maybe I'll get me a beau and paint the town red."

Eleanor was only kidding him, of fault-finding if you would be thought well-mannered.

Today's Horoscope

Today's birthday children will prosper in the year now commencing. They are warned to control their tempers and avoid quarrels as otherwise they may suffer loss. The year is fraught with this danger to them. The child born today will have mechanical ability. He will be independent and self-reliant, energetic and dominant. He must avoid a tendency to dominance and be over-critical of others.

He lingered over her hand. "I don't meet many women like you!"

but he was quiet for a moment. Then he said, "Well . . . so long, honey. You can write me care of International News Service."

Phil was gone ten days. The first night Eleanor went to the movies by herself. The second night she stayed home and tried to read. The apartment seemed awfully lonesome and the telephone didn't ring.

The third night she was having a solitary dinner in a tearoom when she looked up and saw Ed Hastings standing at her table.

Phil didn't like Hastings, but Eleanor had found his professional charm rather interesting. He was in his late thirties and looked much younger. He was trying his hand at acting, or rather, getting a job acting. He had an income, he had told her at one of the parties where they had met, so it wasn't terribly important how soon he landed a job.

His life was devoted to adventure ("no adventuring with the ladies," Phil had said contemptuously) and he had had many. He'd shipped on cattle boats, and visited at a foreign palace, and painted a bit, and run an interior decorating shop, and worked as a coal miner. Eleanor found his talk vastly entertaining.

She said, "Sit down and join me." After dinner he said, "There's an awfully interesting exhibit at the Modern gallery. I think you'd appreciate it. Will you go over with me?"

Phil wouldn't like it much, Eleanor thought, but Phil wouldn't want her to rattle around the apartment alone another evening. She said she'd love to.

It was rather fun. She had never been to an exhibit before, didn't know anything about pictures. Ed's knowledge was superficial, but he knew enough about it all to explain the surface of things to her. Eleanor breathed in information, making it part of her. Her mind was fiercely acquisitive.

When he left her at her door, she thanked him. "It was great fun," she said.

He lingered over her hand. "I don't meet many women like you," he said. "Could we do it again?"

"Perhaps," she said, withdrawing her hand, and added, "some time."

He was on the telephone that was ringing when she let herself in that next night.

"Hello, Lovely Lady," he said. "Will

you get into something pretty and go to the 'Follies' with me tonight?"

"W-w-ell . . ." she hesitated. After all, an invitation to the "Follies"!

He said: "They're awfully good seats."

Eleanor calculated the time she had to bathe and get into her black dress, even while she argued with herself the advisability of accepting his invitation. She said: "What time will you call for me?"

"I'll expect you to dine with me, so I'll be around about seven. What color flowers would you like?"

"Don't bring any flowers," she said firmly.

Phil's train got in after midnight and he went straight to the apartment without telegraphing her.

Eleanor was taking off her black dress when she heard his key in the lock. She pulled the straps up on her shoulders and went out to meet him.

He put his arms about her and kissed her hungrily. Then he became aware of her gown. "How come?" he said.

"I was out . . . Ed Hastings took me to meet Nina Claire. She's the star of 'Naughty Eloise.' I told her how much you liked her when we saw her together."

Phil wet his lips before he spoke. What was Ed Hastings doing around here?

"I met him at a tearoom one night and he . . . Phil, you might as well know it. He took me to an art exhibition, and to the 'Follies' and to dance at the Montmartre and to . . . to this party tonight. And there wasn't a bit of harm in it. We're in New York and we're modern."

Phil's hand on her wrist pressed cruelly. His eyes blazed into hers. His voice was even and low.

"We may be in New York, but we aren't modern when it comes to dates with other men and women."

Eleanor got her wrist away and cherished the red mark. "Phil, I wouldn't be jealous if you had dates with other people. I want us each to be free."

"If I'd wanted to be free to make dates with other women, Nell, I wouldn't have asked you to marry me. I don't want any woman but you. When you find you want another man besides me, we'll call the whole thing off. . . . Good night."

One-Act Play Provides Monday Club Program

Next Meeting To Wind Up Year's Work

The Monday Club of Circleville enjoyed a pleasant diversion from its customary procedure when it met at Circleville high school auditorium Monday for a presentation of a one-act play.

Miss Nell Weldon, chairman of the Literature-Drama division, presented Miss Margaret Rooney, who gave a short synopsis of Jane Austen's novel, "Pride and Prejudice", from which the play "Elizabeth Refuses" was adapted.

The play deals with one scene from the book, the episode before the visit of the Rev. Mr. Collins to the Bennett home, with the intention of picking a bride from among the fine daughters of the household. Mrs. Bennett, who is faced with the task of providing husbands for her dowdier children, is determined that Elizabeth shall hear his suit. Elizabeth, whose heart is pledged to Mr. Darcy, has the difficult task of over-riding her mother's wishes and giving the Rev. Mr. Collins a tactful dismissal. Lady Catherine de Brugh, patroness of the Rev. Mr. Collins and aunt of Mr. Darcy, calls with the intention of setting at naught any ideas Elizabeth may have of wedding Darcy, whom she desires as a husband for her own daughter. She, also, is not equal to the demure and independent Elizabeth, who is at last made happy by the inadvertent admission by Lady Catherine that Darcy will come again that afternoon to renew his suit.

Samuel Johnson and Loren Pace of the high school faculty gave generously of their talents to the production. Mr. Johnson as the director of the play, and Mr. Pace as Collins, a part which he played with great success.

The other characters of the play, all of whom were most convincingly portrayed, were: Elizabeth, Mrs. Robert T. Kelsey; Jane, Miss Jane Mader; Mrs. Bennett, Miss Martha Virginia Mader; Lady Catherine de Brugh, Miss Margaret Mattinson.

The stage was set with Victorian furniture and the costumes of the period worn by the ladies, were loaned by Mrs. Howard Noecker.

Mrs. Hulise Hays, president of Monday club, presided at a short meeting which preceded the play. The name of Mrs. Stella Morrison was voted into active membership. The club adjourned to meet for the last regular meeting of the year Monday, April 24, in the Library Trustees' room, Memorial Hall.

At this time final reports of officers and committees will be heard and the program for the new season will be presented by Miss Jeannette Reichelderfer, chairman of the program committee.

The program for this meeting will be presented by the Division of Government, Miss Alice A. May, chairman. Current events will be discussed during the session, Mrs. Loren Lutz using for her topic, "The United States"; Mrs. Charles Gerhardt, "The Orient" and Miss Lucille Neuding, "Europe". The talks will be limited to 15 minutes.

70 Men To Participate In Womanless Wedding

Large crowds are expected in Memorial Hall Thursday and Friday nights when 70 men of Circleville and the community present the hope talent comedy "Womanless Wedding."

There are no women in the cast. The synthetic representation of that sex is guaranteed to give many a laugh when the men put on evening dresses, picture hats, high heeled shoes to play the roles of charming debutantes, radio and screen celebrities and world famous characters.

The play is sponsored by the Methodist Episcopal church. Mary Jane Starling is directress. Music will be provided by Mrs. Frank Kline, pianist, and Dwight Weiler, violinist.

The bride has been revealed. Ray Rowland will play that part. The bridegroom remains a mystery.

Other characters include: butler, Dr. G. D. Phillips; punch girls, Byron Eby and Robert Norpott; present taker, Ralph Heistland; bride's weeping mother, Frank Lynch; bride's comforting father, Dan McClain; two bad brothers, Ned Plum and Dr. J. J. Baker; Ike Rosenstein, William Goodchild; bride's old maid aunt, James Trimmer; Charlie Chaplin, Ray Reed; bride's grandmother, William Avis; grandfather, Clyde Leist; twin sisters, Ted Schmidt and Dwight Steele; groom's haughty father, Sam Chambers; haughty mother, E. T. Hedges;

Amateur Show Huge Success

By Franklin Kibler

Promoters of the fourth annual Pickaway Amateur Boxing tournament need have no worries about a crowd at the next session of the leather pushing contests if the fights equal those Monday night in Memorial hall.

Fans at the first session of the tournament were entertained with six good bouts. The Circleville high school team won all bouts in which they participated.

Semi-finals in the tournament will be held next Monday night with finals on Tuesday. The contest is being sponsored by the Pickaway County Soldier's and Sailor's Monumental association. Three rounds was the limit in all bouts.

The first bout brought together Junior Neff, 147, of Ashville, and Matthew Grubb, 149, of Walnut, in the welterweight class. The youngsters put on a hard fight and both were worn out at the end of the second round. In the third round neither could hit hard enough to cause any damage. Grubb was given the decision.

James Price, 142, of Circleville, won over Gerald Bowman, 142, of Walnut in a bout that failed to last the three rounds. Price's left kept Bowman worried in the first and had him dizzy in the second. Bowman had enough at the first part of the third and the bout was ended. These boys were in the welterweight class.

Bob Barnes, 115, of Circleville, won the decision over Elmer Neff, 116, Ashville, in their three round scrap. Barnes was the more experienced fighter, but Neff was handy at covering up when he got in danger. Barnes knocked Neff down at the end of the third. Neff waited for the count of nine before he got up and the bell ended the bout. The youngsters were in the bantam-weight class.

Floyd Burchwell, 138 Circleville, won a decision over Evan Dean, 135, of Scioto, in the light-weight class. The boys put on a fast fight. Both boys were worn out by the end of the fight. Dean's footwork had the crowd dizzy.

Two bouts were presented in the open class, both ending with knockouts before the end of the first round.

Homer Patrick, 145, of Wayne township, knocked out Fred Large, 148, of South Bloomfield. They were listed in the welter-weight class.

Edgar Byrd, 126, of Circleville, knocked down Warren Pence, 123, of Ashville, in the early part of their scrap. Pence went backwards on his head and the hard bump added to the knockout.

About 150 persons attended the bouts. Ivan Tope, Columbus, was referee and gave the decisions. John Heiskell was announcer.

DRY LAW

BOISE, Idaho—Many an eyebrow was lifted when scores of cardboard liquor boxes were carried into the state capitol building on the day the Idaho state legislature adjourned. COUNCIL MAY FIX DATE FOR OPENING OF SEWAGE DISPOSAL PLANT

OFFICIALS HOPE TO TREAT CITY WASTES EARLY

Collections Pass $2,200, Thus Providing Needed Funds For Operation

CORRECTIONS TO BE MADE

Supplemental Grant Asked From P.W.A. To Complete Minor Details

Council may consider establishing a date, Wednesday night, for placing the new disposal plant in operation for treatment of city wastes.

Several members expressed opinions Tuesday they would like to see the plant placed in operation as soon as possible since funds are now available for operation.

Over $2,200 has been collected to date in the first quarterly assessment. Councilmen have heard numerous complaints from residents who contend they are paying for a service that is not being provided.

The collections to date have been made from residences and business establishments. So far council has established no schedule for industrial plants. City officials will meet with officials of the Container Corporation Wednesday to discuss charges for treatment of that plant's wastes.

Plant Ready
The plant is ready for operation, councilmen explained, as soon as some corrections are made by the contractor. These will require only a short time to make, they said.

Plant employees have been named with Ervin Leist, Seyfert avenue, as chemist-superintendent.

Council recently requested a 120-day extension from April 29 for the final completion date of the plant in the hope of obtaining a supplemental P. W. A. grant to complete certain items of the project. These improvements are not mandatory for the plant operation. The grant request included $1,680 for construction of a macadam roadway, $2,000 for laboratory equipment, $1,010 for loam, seeding and sodding, and $500 for miscellaneous contingencies.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND
Bing Crosby would rather sing than be pointed out as one of the screen's great lovers. In the past he has regarded torrid movie romancing merely as nice work—for the other fellow.

However, in his new Universal picture, "East Side of Heaven," coming to the Grand theatre on Sunday, Bing and his co-star, Joan Blondell, are said to have some love scenes that might have originated in a raging furnace.

"I still think I'd make a good ice man," Crosby commented when Director David Butler decided he had done enough love-making.

But Joan Blondell, who was the recipient of his technique, had different ideas. And Joan has been involved in some of the screen's hottest romances.

Supporting Bing and Joan in this picture may be found Mischea Auer, Irene Hervey, C. Aubrey Smith, Jerome Cowan, baby "Sandy," J. Farrell MacDonald and Robert Kent.

State Scores in Trial Of Former Davey Aide

COLUMBUS, April 18—Scoring heavily over the defense in the first day of testimony, the state today prepared to send seven witnesses to the stand to tell how Daniel S. Earhart, executive secretary to former Governor Davey, allegedly solicited campaign funds for the Kent tree surgeon.

Three witnesses had already testified that they were called before Earhart last April and informed that they were to donate five percent of their annual salary for five months.

Although Earhart, who at the time of the alleged offense was an attorney-examiner for the State Tax Commission, is specifically charged with soliciting funds from Francis C. Hooper, McConnellsville, sales tax clerk, Common Pleas Judge Cecil J. Randall ruled over strenuous objections of defense counsel that evidence of others who were interviewed by Earhart was admissible.

The slowness with which the trial is moving will necessarily delay the trials of J. L. Kennedy, Charles O. Wilson and William Alexander, which had been set down for today, tomorrow and Thursday.

Others Face Charges
They also are charged with soliciting primary campaign funds for Davey during the Spring of 1938 from civil service employees. Although John A. Connor, one of Earhart's attorneys, attempted to show in his address to the jury that Earhart had no knowledge he was under civil service while employed as an attorney-examiner C. J. Lansley, an efficiency examiner with the Civil Service Commission, produced records to show Earhart was a provisional appointee.

Hooper told the jury of seven men and five women that he was called before Earhart on April 20 and Earhart said:

"You probably know what you're here for."
Hooper said he answered "I presume so" and then he testified that Earhart told him the meeting concerned Davey's campaign and that most employees were "giving" five percent of their salaries.

Hooper said he was told his share would be $78 and that it had to be paid in five installments. "The general conversation was," he testified, "that Governor Davey had been denied the right of newspaper publicity and had to resort to radio."

The young tax clerk said Earhart informed him that "The governor has been good to some of us and we should donate the five percent."

Money Never Paid
Hooper admitted, however, that he never received instructions on how to pay the assessment and that he made no payment. He said he received a transfer from a civil service job in a Morgan county liquor store to the sales tax division through Francis Poulson, former Democratic state chairman.

COUNCIL MAY FIX DATE FOR OPENING OF SEWAGE DISPOSAL PLANT

OFFICIALS HOPE TO TREAT CITY WASTES EARLY

Collections Pass $2,200, Thus Providing Needed Funds For Operation

CORRECTIONS TO BE MADE

Supplemental Grant Asked From P.W.A. To Complete Minor Details

Council may consider establishing a date, Wednesday night, for placing the new disposal plant in operation for treatment of city wastes.

Several members expressed opinions Tuesday they would like to see the plant placed in operation as soon as possible since funds are now available for operation.

Over $2,200 has been collected to date in the first quarterly assessment. Councilmen have heard numerous complaints from residents who contend they are paying for a service that is not being provided.

The collections to date have been made from residences and business establishments. So far council has established no schedule for industrial plants. City officials will meet with officials of the Container Corporation Wednesday to discuss charges for treatment of that plant's wastes.

Plant Ready

The plant is ready for operation, councilmen explained, as soon as some corrections are made by the contractor. These will require only a short time to make, they said.

Plant employees have been named with Ervin Leist, Seyfert avenue, as chemist-superintendent.

Council recently requested a 120-day extension from April 29 for the final completion date of the plant in the hope of obtaining a supplemental P. W. A. grant to complete certain items of the project. These improvements are not mandatory for the plant operation. The grant request included $1,680 for construction of a macadam roadway, $2,000 for laboratory equipment, $1,010 for loam, seeding and sodding, and $500 for miscellaneous contingencies.

THEATRES

AT THE GRAND

Bing Crosby would rather sing than be pointed out as one of the screen's great lovers. In the past he has regarded torrid movie romancing merely as nice work—for the other fellow.

However, in his new Universal picture, "East Side of Heaven," coming to the Grand theatre on Sunday, Bing and his co-star, Joan Blondell, are said to have some love scenes that might have originated in a raging furnace.

"I still think I'd make a good ice man," Crosby commented when Director David Butler decided he had done enough love-making.

But Joan Blondell, who was the recipient of his technique, had different ideas. And Joan has been involved in some of the screen's hottest romances.

Supporting Bing and Joan in this picture may be found Mische Auer, Irene Hervey, C. Aubrey Smith, Jerome Cowan, baby "Sandy," J. Farrell MacDonald and Robert Kent.

State Scores in Trial Of Former Davey Aide

COLUMBUS, April 18—Scoring heavily over the defense in the first day of testimony, the state today prepared to send seven witnesses to the stand to tell how Daniel S. Earhart, executive secretary to former Governor Davey, allegedly solicited campaign funds for the Kent tree surgeon.

Three witnesses had already testified that they were called before Earhart last April and informed that they were to donate five percent of their annual salary for five months.

The slowness with which the trial is moving will necessarily delay the trials of J. L. Kennedy, Charles O. Wilson and William Alexander, which had been set down for today, tomorrow and Thursday.

Others Face Charges

They also are charged with soliciting primary campaign funds for Davey during the Spring of 1938 from civil service employees. Although John A. The young tax clerk said Earhart informed him that "The governor has been good to some of us and we should donate the five percent."

Money Never Paid

Hooper admitted, however, that he never received instructions on how to pay the assessment and that he made no payment. He said he received a transfer from a civil service job in a Morgan county liquor store to the sales tax division through Francis Poulson, former Democratic state chairman.
